

4- what meant by user defined constructor and its role in initialization

a user defined constructor is a constructor that we create by ourselves, It is used to give the object its initial values when we create it

5- compare between Array and Linked List

Array stores elements in a fixed size, while Linked List can grow or shrink

Array is faster when accessing elements by index

Linked List is better when adding or removing elements frequently