

what meant by Csharp is managed code

C# is called managed code because the CLR manages the code while it is running , The CLR helps with memory management, garbage collection, and other things what meant by struct is considered like class before a struct is like a class, but it is a value type It is usually used for small data